

Directors Notes

Hello!

And thank you for coming out today.

You are smart, maybe went to law school, a qualified politician and a nice person.

This is my first time being elected as mayor

Once I was president,

But this feels really good.

You are showing that you are very qualified,
maybe even over-qualified for this position.

Being president is ok, but very big.

Now I get to be the mayor of my own town.

We find out that maybe being president was unwieldy or overwhelming and being mayor seems like a better fit for you.

That means you should expect to see me around

To see me taking care of everything you need.

active in the community...

Seeing me around is the difference between Everything and Nothing

So let's hope for everything!

This is a very important thing for you and you are hopeful that it will work out, excited but remaining composed.

Now, I know I you might have heard

I want to be a totally transparent mayor.

one definition of transparent is: having thoughts, feelings, or motives that are easily perceived

My policy: total transparency.

Discussing policy...maybe this is something that she ran on, essential to her campaign.

If you want to be seen I see you,

And if you want to be invisible I respect that too.

very respectful and will adjust to individual needs

SHIFT

Something has shifted within your own head now you sound hesitant and doubtful, but you are still the same person.

I have to admit I'm having some doubts.

It's just ummm

being mayor is a lot of responsibility...

Well

You just discussed transparency and are trying to be upfront.

Feeling overwhelmed and wanting to do the right thing, what is best.

I think this might actually be me turning down the opportunity to be mayor.

You have made your decision.

I know you probably have many questions,

Keep asking questions.

Snaps back into more normal speech mode and gives a directive. You are still an authority figure despite your decision.

And to those of you thinking or saying

“I will never forgive you”

I hope that in time you will learn to forgive me.

It is not healthy to be angry for too long.

I will try not to worry,

And you should too.

Your final word of advice.

Thank you,

There is always another election.

A sincere conclusion.

Reminder that elections are always happening.
